

The ethical and professional responsibility of FOODpApp is to create a safe space for users to exchange recipes. As founders, we are committed to protecting the privacy of users while giving proper intellectual property credit to recipe creators, preventing the spread of harmful or offensive content, and encouraging a wide variety of recipes from all cultures, ensuring that all users feel welcome.

In a global context, our app encourages the appreciation of cultural differences, helping traditions to be preserved and passed on to new generations within communities and shared with the world. Easy access to authentic recipes allows users to explore the world of flavors at their fingertips. Economically and environmentally, our app encourages users to step out of their comfort zone with a “recipe of the day” tailored to current weather conditions or upcoming holidays, and to purchase ingredients that are in season. The comment section allows users not only to share cooking tips but also to recommend the best-tasting local produce, low prices, and eco-friendly ingredient substitutions to help reduce food waste.

In a societal context, FOODpApp supports a sense of community by offering recipes for all skill levels, and detailed ingredient lists that allow for easy scalability. The option to follow recipe creators lets users build circles of new friends bound by shared culinary interests.